

Today in History

October 29, 2015

▲ China ended its controversial one-child policy after 35 years, allowing married couples to have two children as a way to offset the country's ageing workforce

1787: The opera Don Giovanni, one of Mozart's finest masterpieces, was first performed in Prague

1929: Prices collapsed amid panic selling in the Wall Street Crash

1956: Israeli troops crossed the Egyptian border, sweeping into the Sinai Peninsula toward the Suez Canal

1996: Over 8,000 unclaimed works of art and other valuables stolen from Austrian Jews by the Nazis were auctioned in Vienna