

Today in History

September 1, 2011

▲ The remains of executed Australian bushranger Ned Kelly, famed for carrying out his crimes in home-made armour, were found in a former prison in Melbourne

1967: An Arab summit lifted the oil embargo on Western states imposed during the Six-Day War

2002: The Chinese government blocked access to Google

2003: The Netherlands became the first country to allow cannabis to be dispensed as a prescription drug

2010: Salvage divers discovered 200-year-old bottles of beer, thought to be the world's oldest, from a shipwreck in the Baltic Sea