

Today in History

October 13, 2016

▲ Thailand's revered King Bhumibol Adulyadej, the world's longest-reigning monarch, died at the age of 88 after 70 years as head of state

1990: The first Russian Orthodox service for more than 70 years was held in St Basil's Cathedral in Moscow

1992: Thirteen komodo dragons were born in a Washington zoo, the first hatched outside of Indonesia

2015: It was confirmed that a Russian-made Buk missile fired from eastern Ukraine hit Malaysia Airlines flight MH17

2016: Bob Dylan became the first songwriter to be awarded the Nobel Prize in Literature