

High-level White House departures

Rex Tillerson. Secretary of State: President Trump peremptorily fires former Exxon CEO on Twitter. Abrupt end came following reports that Tillerson referred to Trump as a "moron" at Pentagon meeting in October. Tillerson disagreed with

Trump on Iran nuclear deal and North Korea

Fired, Mar 13, 2018 – 406 days in office

Gary D. Cohn. Chief economic adviser:

Free trade advocate and former Goldman Sachs president quits after losing battle over Trump's plan to impose tariffs on steel and aluminium

Resigned, Mar 6, 2018 – 411 days

Reince Priebus. White House chief of staff:

Trump announces sacking of Priebus on Twitter and offers job to John Kelly

Fired, Jul 28, 2017 – 190 days

Steve Bannon. Chief strategist: Describes meeting of Trump family members and Russian attorney as "treasonous"

Fired, Aug 18, 2017 – 211 days

Omarosa Manigault-Newman. Director of communications-public liaison: Quits over "concerns" about administration

Resigned, Jan 20, 2018 – 366 days

Hope Hicks. Communications director: Admits to House Intelligence Committee that she told "white lies" on Trump's behalf

Resigned, Feb 28, 2018 – 405 days

Sean Spicer. Press Secretary: Leaves in protest over Trump's decision to hire Anthony Scaramucci as communications director

Resigned, Jul 21, 2017 – 183 days

Rob Porter. Staff Secretary: Quits amid allegations of domestic violence from two ex-wives. Porter denies accusations

Resigned, Feb 7, 2018 – 384 days

Katie Walsh. Deputy chief of staff: Quoted saying working with Trump is "like trying to figure out what a child wants"

Resigned, Mar 30, 2017 – 70 days

Michael Flynn. National security adviser: Forced to resign after secretly discussing U.S. sanctions with Russian Ambassador

Fired, Feb 13, 2017 – 25 days

