

Today in History

September 19, 1893

▲ New Zealand became the first country to grant women the vote. In most other democracies, including Britain and the U.S., women had to wait until after WWI

1991: The frozen body of a Stone Age "iceman" around 5,300 years old was discovered in the Alps

2003: Paleontologists reported the discovery of a large rodent skeleton weighing 680kg (1,500lbs)

2005: North Korea agreed in principle to abandon its nuclear weapons programme in return for economic help

2017: A second deadly earthquake in Mexico within a month killed over 370 people