

Today in History

September 29, 1993

▲ Hillary Clinton, the new First Lady of the United States, impressed members of Congress with her programme for health care reform

1954: CERN, the world's largest lab dedicated to particle physics, was founded in Geneva

1988: The space shuttle Discovery blasted off on the first mission since the Challenger explosion in 1986

2008: Struggling banks across Europe and the U.S. received government support due to the global financial crisis

2010: The first planet outside our solar system with the potential to support life was discovered