

Today in History

October 7, 2003

▲ Arnold Schwarzenegger, Austrian-born actor turned politician, was elected governor of California. The Terminator star won 49 percent of the vote

1883: A new classification system for mental illness distinguished treatable and untreatable disorders

1988: A full-international rescue began when grey whales were spotted trapped under Alaskan ice

1997: Scientists announced finding one of the largest stars ever discovered, hidden behind dust in the Milky Way

2015: FIFA suspended top officials, including Sepp Blatter, amid allegations of corruption