

North Korea's pledge to scrap military sites

North Korea has agreed to abolish its key missile engine testing facilities in the presence of international experts, and "expressed readiness" to close its main nuclear complex if the U.S. takes "reciprocal action"

