

Today in History

October 21, 2008

▲ Trucks laden with food crossed the Line of Control dividing disputed Kashmir as India and Pakistan reopened a trade route for the first time in 60 years

1901: The Eastman Kodak Company was formed to market the Brownie camera, which brought photography to the masses

1923: The world's first planetarium was opened in Munich, Germany

1998: Former communist Massimo d'Alema became Prime Minister of Italy

2004: The World Wildlife Fund said consumption of Earth's resources was outstripping its capacity to support life