

Iran unveils new long-range cruise missile

Iran's Ministry of Defence has published a video purportedly showing the launch of a new cruise missile, saying it has a 1,350km range

HOVEIZEH: Part of Soumar family of cruise missiles unveiled in 2015.
Fired from road-mobile transporter erector launch vehicle

Cruise missiles are able to fly close to ground, hugging terrain features, making detection by enemy radar systems more difficult