

Today in History

March 24, 2018

▲ The March For Our Lives, mass protests across the U.S. led by survivors of the school shooting in Florida that killed 17 people, called for tighter gun control

1934: The U.S. adopted the Tydings-McDuffie Act, which gave the Philippines full independence in 1946

1989: Two little known scientists claimed to have unlocked the secret of low-temperature nuclear fusion

1989: The Exxon Valdez oil tanker ran aground in Alaska, spilling some 64 million litres of oil

1999: NATO launched airstrikes in Yugoslavia, which continued until Yugoslav forces withdrew from Kosovo