

Today in History

May 22, 2014

▲ Thailand experienced a second military coup in eight years, after the army seized power from the interim government two days after declaring martial law

1999: A report revealed that Aids claimed 2.3 million lives worldwide in 1998, more than any other infectious disease

2004: Crown Prince Felipe of Spain married TV journalist Letizia Ortiz. After his accession she was the first commoner to become queen

2015: Ireland became the first nation to legalise same-sex marriage

2017: The deadliest of four terror attacks in Britain in three months killed 22 people at a pop concert in Manchester