

Russia-led raids target Syria's northwest

Russia and Syria are stepping up air raids in northwestern Idlib province as President Bashar Assad's forces look to regain momentum in a stalled three-month-old assault on the opposition stronghold

AREAS OF CONTROL (as of July 30, 2019)

- Pro-government forces
- U.S.-backed Kurdish forces
- Opposition forces
- So-called Islamic State militants
- Turkish-backed opposition and Turkish military
- Cities targeted by pro-government air strikes