

Blast at Russian missile test site

A short-term spike in radiation levels was recorded in the northern Russian city of Severodvinsk after a rocket engine exploded at a military testing site near the village of Nyonoksa

