

Spanish voters increasingly divided

Recent polls suggest Spain's second election this year is unlikely to give the ruling Socialists the boost in seats they are hoping for and will do little to resolve the political stalemate

VOTING INTENTIONS COMPARED TO APRIL 28 ELECTION RESULT (Percentage)*

El País poll of polls, Oct 29. Most polls taken after jailing of nine Catalan independence leaders that sparked mass protests in Catalonia*

■ Since outbreak of protests, polls indicate declining support for Socialists and boost for PP and Vox – right-wing parties that want stronger stance against separatism

PSOE

Pedro Sánchez
Socialist
Party (PSOE)

Populares

Pablo Casado
Partido
Popular (PP)

UNIDAS PODEMOS

Pablo Iglesias
Unidas
Podemos

Vox

Santiago Abascal
Vox

Ciudadanos

Albert Rivera
Ciudadanos
"Citizens"