

Australia's bushfire crisis intensifies

Authorities in the Australian state of New South Wales have declared a week-long state of emergency as thousands of residents and tourists flee worsening bushfire conditions

