

America's fragile jobs market

The number of Americans seeking jobless benefits fell by 249,000 last week, but a staggering 31.3 million people were receiving unemployment benefits in July, according to the U.S. Department of Labor

