

Disney strengthens racism alert on classics

Disney+ has strengthened a content alert on some classic films, flashing up a warning that they include racist stereotypes

Fantasia (1940)

Centaurs portrayed as African-American stereotypes

Peter Pan (1953)

Native Americans labelled "redskins"

Dumbo (1941). Crows depicted as African-American stereotypes

Lady and the Tramp (1955).

Siamese cats portrayed as Asian stereotypes

Jungle Book (1968)

King Louie portrayed as African-American stereotype

Swiss Family Robinson (1960)

Pirates depicted as Asian stereotypes

The Aristocats (1970)

Siamese cat depicted as racist Asian caricature

Song of the South (1946). Controversial movie has never been released for sale in U.S.) Depiction of plantation worker Uncle Remus perpetuates racist myth that slaves were happy