

Oil refineries closing as demand dwindles

The global appetite for oil has tumbled by almost a third since the onset of the Covid-19 pandemic, forcing oil companies to close refineries in the belief that demand will not return to pre-pandemic levels

Martinez, California, U.S.
(Marathon Petroleum)

Mobile, Alabama, U.S.
(Shell)

Puget Sound, Washington, U.S.
(Shell)

Sarnia, Ontario, Canada
(Shell)

Grandpuits, France
(Total)

Grangemouth, Scotland
(Petroineos)

Frederica, Denmark
(Shell)

Convent, Louisiana, U.S.
(Shell)

Osaka, Japan
(Eneos Corp)

Gallup, New Mexico, U.S.
(Marathon Petroleum)

Antwerp, Belgium
(Gunvor Group)

Pulau Bukom, Singapore
(Shell)

Tabangao, Philippines
(Shell)

Kwinana, Western Australia, Australia
(BP)

Geelong, Victoria, Australia
(Viva Energy)

Marsden Point, New Zealand
(Refining NZ)

