

Dramatic drop in Saudi executions

Saudi Arabia, for years one of the world's most prolific executioners, dramatically reduced the number of people put to death last year after halting executions for non-violent drug-related crimes

Crown Prince Mohammed bin Salman:

Has spearheaded reforms curtailing power of ultraconservative Wahhabis, who adhere to strict interpretation of Islamic law

