

Today in History

April 10, 1921

▲ Sun Yat-sen was named “Extraordinary President” of the new national government in Guangzhou, one of three separate governments in southern China

1980: Spain and Britain agreed to reopen the Spain-Gibraltar border, closed since 1969

2000: Angela Merkel became leader of the Christian Democratic Union in Germany

2000: The leaders of North and South Korea announced they would meet in Pyongyang for their first-ever summit

2011: The UN estimated that more than half a million people had fled from Libya in two months