

Earth's diminishing forests

Global forest cover has declined by one million square kilometres since 1960, while cropland and pasture have increased by roughly the same extent, according to a new study

Deforestation is rife in Brazilian Amazon

CHANGING WORLD

Net change in habitats after accounting for gains and losses (100,000km²)

