

Healthcare in high-income countries

The United States trails other wealthy countries on almost every healthcare measure, with Norway, the Netherlands and Australia taking the top places in a Commonwealth Fund survey

Rank*  Healthcare spending (share of gross domestic product, 2019)
 Maternal mortality rates (deaths per 100,000 live births, 2018)

*Analysis of 71 measures in five performance domains: access to care, care process, administrative efficiency, equity, and health care outcomes