

Quest for net-zero emissions

The world needs to boost investment in renewable energy sources – solar, wind and hydropower – to avert catastrophic climate change, the International Energy Agency warns

IEA options for policymakers

