

Greenpeace calls on EU to ban short flights

Environmental group Greenpeace has called on the European Union to ban short flights on routes where a train journey under six hours is available, as pressure grows on governments to limit climate change

CLIMATE IMPACT OF EUROPE'S BUSIEST SHORT-HAUL FLIGHTS

Kilograms of CO₂-equivalent emitted per passenger

*With total climate impact

More than one-third of EU's busiest short-haul flights are served by train journeys of under six hours

150
busiest flights

When taking into account combined CO₂ emissions, trains emit average of five times less CO₂-equivalent than plane on same route