

Today in History

January 11, 1922

▲ A 14-year-old boy with diabetes was successfully treated with insulin, a year after it was first isolated in Toronto by Frederick Banting and Charles Best

1787: William Herschel discovered two moons orbiting the planet Uranus, which he had discovered in 1781

1913: The last horse-drawn omnibus in Paris set out on its final journey, replaced by trams and motorbuses

2002: Cross-hatching designs dating back 77,000 years were discovered in South Africa

2007: English soccer star David Beckham signed a five-year $250m deal with the U.S. team L.A. Galaxy