

Portugal's Socialists win majority

The centre-left Socialist Party, led by Prime Minister Antonio Costa, has won an unexpected majority in Portugal's snap general election, which followed an impasse over the proposed state budget for 2022

Costa's Socialists won 41.7% of vote – allowing them to enact legislation without support of other parties over their four-year term

PORTUGAL'S INCOMING PARLIAMENT

Results with all national seats allocated

● Elected by overseas constituencies: 4*

*Yet to be counted

Total seats
230