

Ukraine conflict could hit food costs

Russia's invasion of Ukraine could destabilize global food prices. Dozens of countries around the world rely on Russia's and Ukraine's bountiful supplies of wheat, corn, and vegetable oil

Food and Agriculture Organization's food price index

Share of global food exports

