

Today in History

June 27, 1985

▲ America's iconic Route 66, which stretched some 2,200 miles from Chicago to Los Angeles, was decertified and all its highway signs were removed

1693: The first women's magazine, the Ladies' Mercury, was published in London

1954: The world's first atomic power station opened in the "Science City" of Obninsk, near Moscow

1967: The world's first automated teller machine began dispensing cash at a bank in north London

2009: NATO and Russia agreed to restore military ties following the 2008 war in Georgia