

Italy's far-right rivals set for power

Final opinion polls put Giorgia Meloni's post-fascist Brothers of Italy above 25 percent – almost double that of Matteo Salvini's anti-immigration League – ahead of Sunday's election

Giorgia Meloni: Such a result will allow her to claim post of prime minister and decide direction of her coalition with League and Forza Italia

Matteo Salvini: Could make trouble on issues, notably Ukraine war, on which he disagrees with Meloni
