

Today in History

November 4, 2007

▲ The mummy of Tutankhamun went on display in his tomb in the Valley of the Kings, revealing the face of the 19-year-old pharaoh for the first time

1922: Howard Carter found the first signs of the tomb of Tutankhamun

1942: British troops defeated the Germans at El Alamein

1982: The UN adopted a resolution calling on Argentina and Britain to discuss sovereignty of the Falkland Islands

2002: Turkey's Islamist AKP Party won a crushing general election victory, bringing an end to 15 years of coalition government