

Today in History

January 22, 1983

▲ Swedish tennis star Bjorn Borg retired from the sport at the age of only 26, having won six French Opens and five consecutive titles at Wimbledon

1963: France and West Germany signed a treaty sealing the reconciliation of the two WWII combatants

1973: Prizefighter George Foreman won the world heavyweight title after knocking out Joe Frazier

1973: The U.S. Supreme Court legalized abortion, arousing strong passions on both sides ever since

2003: Scientists in China announced the discovery of a small dinosaur with four wings and a plumed tail