

Death toll from earthquake climbs

More than 17,000 people are now known to have died in Turkey and Syria, as hopes fade of many more people being found alive and frustration grows over the slow delivery of aid

