

China plans military training site in Cuba

China and Cuba are reportedly negotiating to establish a new joint military training facility, after Washington earlier said that Beijing has a spy base on the island

Joint military training centre

Talks at advanced stage for site on Cuba's north coast. Could pave way for Beijing to station troops permanently and expand spying activities

ATLANTIC OCEAN

Tampa

FLORIDA (U.S.)

Miami

BAHAMAS

GULF OF MEXICO

Key West

Straits of Florida

Havana

Santa Clara

300km
185 miles

MEXICO

Bejucal: Washington suspects China uses site to intercept U.S. electronic communications

Isla de la Juventud

CARIBBEAN SEA

CUBA

Santiago de Cuba

Guantanamo Bay (U.S. naval base)

Jun 10: Biden administration official says China has been spying from Cuba for some time and upgraded its intelligence collection facilities there in 2019

Spy installations in Cuba would allow Beijing to eavesdrop on electronic communications throughout southeastern U.S., according to Wall Street Journal report