

Volcano erupts in Papua New Guinea

Some residents of a remote Papua New Guinea island are preparing to evacuate after an erupting volcano shot a cloud of ash into the sky, forcing the cancellation of some flights

Nov 20, Mount Ulawun

Eruption sends smoke as high as 15km. Officials say volcano remains active and eruption could continue indefinitely

Last major eruption

More than 5,000 people forced to evacuate in 2019

Hoskins: Airport temporarily closed and flights cancelled

