

Today in History

April 15, 1964

▲ The first Ford Mustang was sold to a Chicago schoolteacher, two days before the car's official launch. Over 100,000 were sold in the first three months

1994: World trade ministers finally signed the GATT treaty after eight years of protracted negotiations

1999: The only known solar system with planets other than our own was discovered

2004: The 508m Taipei 101 tower in Taiwan was declared the world's tallest building, a title it held until 2009

2023: Intense fighting in Sudan between rival factions of the military regime killed at least 185 people