

Today in History

June 1, 1947

▲ The Doomsday Clock, intended to show how close humanity was to catastrophic destruction, first appeared on the cover of the Bulletin of Atomic Scientists

1967: The Beatles released the album Sgt. Pepper's Lonely Hearts Club Band. It won four Grammy Awards

1996: Ukraine transferred the last of its nuclear warheads to Russia

2001: Nepal's Crown Prince shot dead his parents and seven others in an argument over his choice of bride

2016: Switzerland officially opened the world's longest railway tunnel. The Gotthard Base Tunnel enabled trains to travel at up to 250km/h