

Russia's mobile nuclear war shelters

Russia is mass-producing mobile bomb shelters that can be delivered anywhere by truck, designed to protect people against the effects of nuclear explosions – radiation, shrapnel, debris, chemicals and fire

Structure: Formed by connecting two 40-foot (12.2m) shipping containers together

Cost of each shelter: $380,000

HABITATION MODULE

Designed to protect 54 people from harmful radiation for up to 48 hours

Bunks: Space for 27 people to sleep at any one time (half population)

Air tight doors

Air tight door: Can connect to other habitation modules

"KUB-M" SHELTER

Connecting doors

Exhaust

Concrete blocks

LIFE SUPPORT MODULE

Air intake room

Diesel generator

Electrical controls

Air cylinder

Filtration room

Male toilet

Female toilet

Steel buttresses: Anchored 1m into ground

