

The strangest tech unveiled at CES

Cut down on unhealthy habits with the Kirin Electric Salt Spoon, which electrocutes your food, making it taste more salty

$200

Longing for a 27-inch TV you can lug around with a shoulder strap? No, us neither, but LG's StanbyME 2 wireless TV does it anyway!

$2,000

$1,000

Perhaps the ideal gadget for a teenager's bedroom, the Roborock Saros Z70 robot vacuum not only cleans floors, its robot arm apparently picks stuff up and tidies it away too

A fashion faux pas it may be, but the EcoFlow Power Hat conceals solar panels that can charge your phone... while you look a little bit self-conscious

$129

Too important to blow on your own coffee to cool it down? Let the Nékojita FuFu beverage cooler do it for you

$25

$70

$3,500

Cut down on scrolling with the ThinkBook Plus Gen 6 Rollable, which extends the screen vertically by 50%

Need a pointless furball attached to your handbag?

◀ Mirumi, a shy sloth-like robot, will hang on for dear life looking slightly distressed by it all
