

U.S. tourism slump to cost billions

The United States economy is set to lose billions of dollars in revenue in 2025 from a pullback in foreign tourism and boycotts of U.S. goods, according to data from the International Trade Administration

INTERNATIONAL VISITORS TO THE UNITED STATES (year-over-year change)*

*Number of non-U.S. citizens arriving by air from each country or region