“Cold blob” behind Europe’s heatwave

The heatwave battering Europe may have been exacerbated by a “cold blob” of water in the North Atlantic, a warning that a slowdown in a vital ocean current could create more extreme hot and cold temperatures

Sources: Science News, AFP

© GRAPHIC NEWS