Houthi attacks raise risk of wider war

Deadly attacks on Riyadh airport demonstrate the ability of Yemen's Iran-backed Houthis to strike at the heart of Saudi power, raising the risk of a wider escalation that could draw in the United States

Palestine-2: Two-stage solid-fuel hypersonic ballistic missile developed by Houthis with technological assistance from Iran

Based on Iranian-made Fateh-110 but incorporates improved guidance systems, propulsion and manoeuvrability. Palestine-2 (right) is highly accurate and can achieve Mach 16 speeds
